Short Biography

Katharina Roser is a Lecturer and Senior Researcher at the Faculty of Health Sciences and Medicine of the University of Lucerne. She studied Mathematics at the University of Basel. She did her PhD in Epidemiology at the Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute (Swiss TPH) in Basel in the framework of the HERMES (Health Effects Related to Mobile phone use in AdolescentS) project (2012-2015). From 2016 until 2021, she was a Senior Research Fellow at the Department of Health Sciences and Medicine of the University of Lucerne. In parallel, she worked as a scientific collaborator at the Cancer Registry of Central Switzerland on a project on the epidemiology of cancer in adolescents and young adults in Central Switzerland (2017-2018) and at the Swiss National Science Foundation on a project investigating new features in one of the funding schemes for early career researchers (2019). She is the principal investigator of a project on adolescent and young adult (AYA) cancer in Switzerland and another project on the socio-bureaucratic hardships after childhood cancer from the perspective of parents, survivors, and experts in Switzerland. Alongside her research activities, she teaches in the Bachelor in Health Sciences and the Joint Medical Master UniLU-UZH and supervises Master students in Health Sciences.
