A Workshop with Andrew Abbott

Distinguished Guest:	Andrew Abbott Gustavus F. and Ann M. Swift Distinguished Service Professor in the Department of Sociology and the College at the University of Chicago
Organizers:	Martin Petzke and Leon Wansleben
Date:	Wednesday, May 8, 2013, 9:15 am - 1 pm
Room:	4.B47
Language:	English
Contact:	The number of participants is limited. To register or for further information, please contact Martin Petzke at martin.petzke@unilu.ch

Content:	The workshop explores the social and cultural foundations of knowledge. ▪ How and why do exclusive occupational groups control expert knowledge? ▪ What are the dynamics governing the emergence of such "jurisdictions"? ▪ How does knowledge change within knowledge systems? ▪ What patterns of development can be discerned in, for instance, the social sciences? ▪ What are the practices and infrastructures underlying the generation, storage, and retrieval of knowledge and how are they themselves changing? In engaging with Andrew Abbott's seminal work on these matters, the workshop provides a unique opportunity to discuss these and other questions with the author himself.

Note:	The workshop is aimed at PhD students and post-docs.

Lecture:	Prof. Andrew Abbott: Tuesday, May 7, 2013, 5:30 pm - 7 pm | Room 3.B48 "Scarcity, Abundance, Excess: Towards a Social Theory of Too Much" All interested parties are welcome
