Your Planned Research

Formulate the research question for your thesis.

What question do you wish to explore? Why is the answer to this question relevant from a practical point of view? How may the answer add to existing knowledge / what is a potential research gap?

Identify three articles on the topic that you find inspiring (e.g., help to find a focus, get a better overview, guide your empirical work). The articles must be published in peer-reviewed journals.

Which three articles have you identified? What makes them inspiring for your thesis?

Planning your methods: Write down in as much detail as possible how you plan to collect data/information to answer your research question.

How will you collect the data: Do you plan to conduct qualitative (e.g., interview-based), quantitative (e.g., survey-based) or a literature-based thesis? What is the reason for choosing this specific method? From whom/where are you collecting the data / where will you start your literature search? How are you going to analyze your data / your literature?

About you and your expectations

Explain your motivation.

Why are you interested in studying the proposed questions? What are your personal goals?

Reflect on your existing skills and additional competences that would help you for successfully completing your thesis.

What relevant skills and knowledge do you have? Which skills would you like to develop further? Which skills do you still need to acquire in order to complete your work successfully?

Reflect on how your supervisor could help you.

Where are you still unsure? What support do you need in general/form your supervisor

Please email the completed application form along with your overview of academic record directly to your preferred thesis supervisor.
