

«Winning the publication game»

Tutor	PD Dr. Jürgen Barth, Bern, www.juergen-barth.de
Organization	Graduate Academy
Language	Englisch
ECTS-Points	1 (Certificate available upon request with a minimum of 80 % attendance.)
Nos. of participants	max. 12
Content	This course is designed for all researchers who wish to write a scholarly publication. Participants of all experience levels are welcome, and the course offers practical support to all participants in the writing process. All participants will work on their own manuscript, which is scheduled to be submitted to a peer-reviewed journal in the coming months. During a half-day in-person session, specific steps for drafting a first version will be discussed. During an online course day, participants work on their own text (in breakout rooms) and receive timely, individualized feedback from the instructor to help them move closer to their goals. This online course day concludes with brief input from the instructor on topics such as “how do I write a discussion section?”, “how do I submit to a journal?”, “what should be included in the cover letter?”, etc. The course is interactive, and thanks to constructive, clear instructions provided in a supportive atmosphere, participants often make unexpected progress on their writing. The instructor will provide specific custom GPTs designed for revising manuscripts.
Prerequisites/ Materials	Before the course begins, all participants will receive a two-page form to specify the current status of their manuscript, their respective field of research, and other formal details (co-authors, deadlines, etc.). In addition, participants are asked to upload two papers by other research groups that have already been published in the target journal. All participants should upload these files to Dropbox.
Reading list	Introduction chapter from: Domes, G., Ditzen, B., &amp; Barth, J. (Eds.). (2019). Academic Publishing in Psychology: A Practical Guide. Springer.
Teaching method	Presentations by the instructor. Work on your own manuscript. In-person in Lucerne and online.

	Lucerne: Wednesday, June 17, 9:15 a.m. – 1:00 p.m. Online: Thursday, July 2, or Friday, July 3, 9:15 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. The online session will be scheduled via Doodle after registration.
Charge	This Graduate Academy offering is directed at researchers, post-docs and doctoral students of the University of Lucerne and its partner institutions and is free of charge for these persons.