

Profile of the Faculty of Economics and Management

The Faculty of Economics and Management is the youngest faculty at the University of Lucerne. It opened its doors to students in the fall semester of 2016 and seeks to establish an independent profile through its focus on specialist issues combined with academic research and teaching of a high international standard. Teaching focuses on issues related to the point of intersection between business, government and society. The faculty's personal touch comes from the close interaction between teaching staff and students – unique for a faculty of economics and management.

At Bachelor's level (BA in Economics and Management), we offer a broad-based academic training in economics, business studies and associated methodology. A follow-on Master's degree will be established in 2019 with possibilities for in-depth studies in Political Economics, Entrepreneurial Management and Integrated Health Management and Economics.
